Robin Thicke with Chicago hit the stage playing a montage of Chicago jazz-rock seventies hits prelude into "Blurred Lines." Taylor Swift performed a dramatic piano solo of her hit album from RED. Julia Roberts was ushered as a presenter with the music of Eric Clapton's "Lay Down Sally." Julia announced the 50 year anniversary since The Beatles played Ed Sullivan show and changed the world of rock and roll music. Yoko Ono, wife of late Beatle John Lennon, and her son Sean were in the audience and made a splashy presentation at the awards along with Alicia Keys.

Roberts introduced Paul McCartney and Ringo Starr to the stage for a rare performance. Neil Patrick Harris introduced Daft Punk and Stevie Wonder who joined in to perform "Get Lucky." Willie Nelson, Kris Kristofferson, Merle Haggard, and Blake Shelton performed in honor of Lifetime Achievement Awards. The dream team country collab played timeless hits "Okie from Muskogee" and "Mammas Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to Be Cowboys." that ignited an audience sing-along.

The evening ended up with a highly charged collaboration with Nine Inch Nails, Queens of the Stone Age with David Grohl and Fleetwood Mac's Lindsay Buckingham.
